Cushman & Wakefield Ltd.

ROLE & RESPONSIBILITIES

In his 11 years at Cushman & Wakefield, Erik Langburt has developed a unique expertise of translating business strategy into real estate solutions for his clients.

Along with his partner, Lloyd P. Cooper, they are the number one team for Cushman & Wakefield in Canada. Together with their team, they manage a sophisticated corporate occupier advisory practice, which includes leasing, acquisitions and dispositions, as well as collaboration with C&W's world-class Global Occupier Services platform. The team believes that integrating organizational culture into real estate decisions can enable high level business performance and, when properly executed, serve to differentiate smart companies from their competition. The team is known for their creativity, which they apply to all aspects of their data-driven practice including real estate strategy, opportunity selection and lease negotiations.

WORK EXPERIENCE

To date, Erik has been personally involved in over 400 commercial real estate transactions representing over 3 million square feet, including portfolio optimizations, build-to-suits and sustainable developments.
